These systems can be used to scope and scale layouts for buildings. CoreGIS software allows for fast and easy creation of GIS maps, building footprint diagrams, building illustrations, and prototyping. The CoreGIS can be used because its functions have a high degree of configurability, and because every component within a building can be set using configuration settings. Distance calculations, floor plans, and coordination between buildings and bus stops are just a few of the settings available for architects, interior designers, and urban planners. Month: February 2017 I am writing to keep you abreast of a few improvements that we have made to our offering at Wintergreen. First, we have opened the District Offices to the public. Two hours a month, beginning on March 7, we will host a free and public welcome reception and a tour of our offices. We are happy to meet new families, and show you all of our state-of-the-art pedagogical resources and tools for your kids. Coming on March 21, we are thrilled to announce that we are opening a new "Explore Science, Technology, Engineering, Arts, and Math" center at the Thomas B. Dozier Center for Educational Technology in Greensboro. The center is named after Dozier, our first director, who was an advocate for STEM, particularly in our K-8 schools. The center will be a lab space that includes a "hands-on" Explore Science, Technology, Engineering, Arts, and Math (STEAM) exhibit, hands-on STEM activities for children, and a mobile visualization center that will showcase the experience of the children at Wintergreen. We are also in the process of identifying resources and materials that can be borrowed from area schools and used with our students. I hope that you will be able to attend one of our monthly Open Houses. They are an opportunity for you to tour
